W. C. Doherty Elected President of Travelers Protective Association.

AT LEXINGTON NEXT.

Barbecue Feature Of The Drummers' Convention at Bowling Green.

Bowling Green, Ky., May 6.—The P. A. state convention was attended by 250 members.

The business meetings were held at the Y. M. C. A. and the social sessions at Elks' home.

W. C. Doherty, of Hopkinsville, was elected state president.

H. Davis, of Hopkinsville, was a member of the state board of directors and A. H. Eckles, of the city, was chosen as one of the delegates to the national convention. Mr. Doherty as alternate.

Lexington was selected as the place of the next Kentucky convention.

The convention closed at noon with an old fashioned barbecue dinner at the loose floor, with Hon. T. W. Thomas master of ceremonies.

OF COURSE, OF COURSE.

Hopkinsville Gets Everything Worth Having.

Washington, May 8.—Postmaster General Hitchcock Saturday designated thirty-six additional postoffices as postal savings depositories which, including those previously selected, will make a total of 129 established since Jan. 1. The work of furnishing the necessary equipment and having the postmasters and their assistants instructed will be hurried to permit receiving deposits June 1.

Mr. Hitchcock expects to extend the system as rapidly as possible until he has a postal savings bank in every money order office in the United States. Among the offices designated were: Ensley, Ala.; Miami, Fla.; Hopkinsville, Ky.; Natchez, Miss.; Bartlesville, Okla.; Sumter, S. C.; Jellico, Tenn.; and Staunton, Va.

PROSPECT OF PEACE GROWS BRIGHTER

President Diaz Changes His Mind And Agrees To Resign.

"SOME TIME OR OTHER"

Gen. Madero Accepts His Manifesto As Satisfactory.

Mexico City, May 8.—Gen. Porfirio Diaz last night issued a manifesto to the people of Mexico declaring his intention to resign the presidency as soon as peace is restored. In this manner the president has virtually acceded to the demand of Francisco I. Madero that he make announcement of such intention.

As to when peace is actually restored, General Diaz reserves the right to be the Judge. In the words of the manifesto, it will be "when, according to the dictates of my conscience, I am sure that my resignation will not be followed by anarchy."

The president declared that this determination not to relinquish the presidency at this time was not due to vanity or love of power, because, as he pointed out, power at this time had no attraction, accompanied as it is by tremendous responsibilities and worries. He said he was prompted solely by a desire to conserve the best interests of his country.

The president made it clear that he does not propose to abandon the presidency while his country is at war and that he would not do so at any time under compulsion.

El Paso, Tex., May 8.—The movement of troops had begun south toward Mexico City when an Associated Press representative telephoned Madero's headquarters and read the dispatch from Mexico City. General Pascual Orozco received it and said it probably would stop the movement of the army.

General Orozco himself mounted his horse and galloped away with the news to the tent a mile away, where General Madero had retired for the night.

When Gen. Madero heard of the dispatch from Mexico City concerning President Diaz's resignation, he immediately gave orders to have troops stop marching. Couriers were sent ahead to halt the advance guard.

The insurrecto camp rang with shouts of joy as soon as the news of the Diaz announcement spread.

MADERO JUBILANT.

Bugles were blown and fires were kindled, around which the men danced with joy. Gen. Madero returned from his tent to headquarters to await further news. He was plainly excited and when members of his family arrived in automobiles, he embraced and kissed them all.

"The triumph of the revolution" was the praise most heard but intermingled with the noisy chatter at the Madero headquarters was many a word of praise for Gen. Diaz.

Elks Profit by Generous Benefit Offer of Airdome.

In spite of the inclement weather that made out door exhibits unpleasant all of the week except the last two days, the Elks week at the Airdome was a financial success and under Manager Bleich's generous offer the Building Fund will be augmented by more than $250. The advance sales of tickets saved the day for the Elks. Too much credit cannot be given to the committee headed by Mr. W. H. Cummings, Dr. I. L. Fierstein and other Elks.

COUNCIL TO COOPERATE

With The Ladies In Cleaning Up The City This Week

ORDINANCES PASSED

Oil For Street Use Purchased From Indian Refining Company.

The City Council met in regular session Friday night and received the monthly reports and paid the current accounts. The budget for April was $171.19. The City Light Co.'s bill was $568.79, the work house board bill $142.92 and $240.32 was paid for a tank of street oil from the Standard Oil Co.

The street committee reported that it had purchased the season's supply of oil for the streets from the Indian Refining Co. at 4 1/2 cents a gallon.

Health officer Stowe reported 14 deaths 8 white and 6 colored and 13 births, 10 white and 3 colored during April.

The Mayor was authorized to appoint the Board of Equalization for 1911, and to appoint officers for the colored school trustee election May 6.

A concrete pavement was ordered on 13th street from Water street to the Pioneer Graveyard. Ordinances ordering concrete pavements on both sides of 7th and 9th streets, passed their first reading. A concrete street was ordered from Main to Virginia, on Seventh street.

An amount not to exceed $150 was appropriated for beautifying the little park on Belmont street. A petition from the Women's Civil Improvement League was presented and the Council pledged its cooperation in cleaning up the city and will furnish wagons to remove debris from the streets on the cleaning days. An anti-spitting ordinance asked for will be considered May 19.

We are authorized to announce
N. A. BARNETT
as a candidate for City Councilman from the Third Ward, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Wm. Addams is going at his canvass for Governor in a business-like way, by using printers ink and paying for it at advertising rates in all the papers. Kentucky needs a business administration and Mr. Addams' methods are coming in for much favorable comment.

The speech of Ed O'Rear at Hopkinsville Monday was the most dangerous to the Kentucky Democracy that has been delivered in years. He is by long odds the ablest man in his party, and his nomination, which now seems to be a foregone conclusion, means that the Democratic party will have a bitter contest on its hands this fall.—Elkton Times.

It would be a sad day for Kentucky if a man among either party, holding the socialistic ideas of Judge O'Rear should be elected Governor of Kentucky. He is already recognized as the choice of the night rider sympathizers of Western Kentucky, although he stated that he was opposed to actual violence, and his supporters are not confined to his own party. On the other hand many law and order Republicans are outspoken against him, even if he should be nominated.

Saved Many From Death.

W. L. Mock, of Mock, Ark., believes he has saved many lives in his 25 years experience in the drug business. "What I always like to do,"
he writes, "is to recommend Dr.
King's New Discovery for weak, sore lungs, hard colds, hoarseness, obstinate coughs, lagrippe, croup, asthma or other bronchial affection, for I feel sure that a number of my neighbors are alive and well today because they took my advice to use it. I honestly believe its the best throat and lung medicine that's made." Easy to prove he's right. Get a trial bottle free, or regular 50c or $1.00. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Makes Whistles.

Rev. W. F. Cashman, the beloved pastor of the Methodist church, hid himself to the woods Saturday where he engaged himself in the manufacture of paw-paw and white walnut whistles. The largest one is on exhibition at Withers Drug Store, is of white walnut, thirty-seven inches long, about an inch in diameter and as beautiful in tone and 'almost as loud as the whistle of the Steamer
Nashville.—Eddyville Herald.

A Father's Vengeance.

Would have fallen on any one who him Electric Bitters and he improved wonderfully from taking six bottles. Its the best kidney medicine I ever saw." Backache, Tired feeling, Nervousness, Loss of Appetite, warn of kidney trouble that may end in dropsy, diabetes or Bright's disease.

Beware: Tal Electric Bitters and be safe. Every bottle guaranteed.

STRATEGY OF VIRGINIA FOX

Made Tracks to Hole in Ice, Doubled Back and Watched Pursuing Dog Drown.

A Virginian who is fond of studying wild animals in their natural surroundings once had an opportunity of seeing himself an example of the cunning for which the fox has become proverbial.

As the amateur naturalist was standing near the bank of a river one winter day he saw a fox run out upon the ice and make straight for a hole. At the edge of the opening he stopped, turned, followed his tracks back to the bank, ran down the stream and paused to await developments.

In a little while a dog came tearing out of the woods with his nose close to the ice and snow. He ran along the ice with his head down, following the scent until he reached the opening. It was then too late to check his speed; he plunged into the water and was lost under the ice.

The fox meanwhile had waited in plain sight to watch the effect of his little trick. After the dog came into view the fox remained perfectly motionless until he saw his old enemy disappear. Then with a look on his face which seemed to combine a good-natured grin with a mild contempt, he went nonchalantly off about his business.

TRULY IN HARD LUCK.

A young man, the heir to considerable wealth, who is imprisoned on a little bit of territory in Brunswick, thinks Dame Fortune has been unkind to him. He can never leave his estate unless he first sacrifices his patrimony. His name is Eben-stein and he inherits his property from a grandfather who, as Hanoverian, fought against the Prussians in 1866. Old Ebenstein never forgave the Prussians and in his will tied up his property with the condition that the tenant-for-life should never set foot on Prussian soil. But as Prussia surrounds Brunswick Ebenstein can never get out of it without violating the will and letting his money go to a remote, undeserving cousin.

VANGUARD OF FLIES.

Perhaps you have noticed that a few large blue bottle flies have been buzzing against the window pane, and possible from some unknown place a housefly has come out on a tour of inspection. These are the avant-houtriers of the horde that will soon make its appearance with disease-laden feet. They will be attracted to the house by the smell of food and if the entrances are not well guarded they will get in and carry with them some deadly infection. The sanitary garbage can, the door and window screens, the "swat-ter" and the fly poison are the only means of protection. It will be prudent to provide these means of defense before the flies arrive.—South Bend News.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
One hundred thousand people endorse this claim.

Here is one case:

Mrs. F. L. Stewart, Walnut Grove St., Princeton, Ky., says: "For the benefit of other kidney sufferers, I am glad to tell of my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy brought me from the brink of the grave and restored me to good health. Doctors' prescriptions did not help me and I was so miserable at times that I could not turn over in bed. I often wished that death might come and end my suffering. The kidney secretions were badly disordered and doctors diagnosed my case as gravel. They gave me medicine in order to dissolve the stones, but I gradually grew worse until death seemed to be a matter of but a few weeks. My husband finally procured Doan's Kidney Pills and though I laughed at the idea of a proprietary medicine helping me, I began their use. In less than two weeks I was up, attending to my housework and in a little over a month I was completely cured."

SHUNNING HONORARY TITLES

Baron Steuben Feared Doctor's Degree—Sharp Retort to an Illiterate but Wealthy Man.

Some men have shunned honorary titles almost as earnestly as others have coveted them. After Lafayette had been made a doctor of laws by a New Jersey college shortly before the close of the revolutionary war, Baron Steuben was in great fear lest he should meet a similar mishap.
Having to pass through a college town where the marquis had been thus distinguished, the old warrior, so the story runs, halted his men and thus addressed them: "You shall have to spur the horses well and ride through this place like the devil, for, if they catch you they will make doctors of you." There is another story that, only a few years ago, when college degrees were scattered somewhat lavishly, an illiterate old man of great wealth, having been honored with a degree by a college which he had laid under obligation, made a wager that he could obtain a similar honor for his servant. He won the wager, and, encouraged by his success, made another that he could obtain a degree for his horse. This time, however, he lost. The college authorities got wind of his game and in answer to his request for a doctorate for So-and-So the president wrote a courteous note saying that, though the trustees were very anxious to oblige so good a friend of the college, they had found on examination of the records that, though they had once conferred a degree upon a jackass, there was no precedent for conferring one upon a horse.

AMERICAN PEERAGE GROWING

List of Women From This Country Who Have Married Titled Foreigners is Long.

As indicating the extent of international marriages, as far back as 1890 a book was published called "Titled Americans—A List of American Ladies Who Have Married Foreigners of Rank," says Cleveland Moffett in Success Magazine. The list was at that time over 200 pages long and it has grown amazingly since then. Let anyone run over in his mind the names of our conspicuous multimillionaire families—the Astors, Vanderbilts, Goulds, Leiters, Huntingtons, Singers, Drexels, etc.
—and he will find that they all have intermarried with titled foreigners.
Year after year such unions have increased until today there are American countesses, duchesses, princesses, in every capital and corner of Europe.

CHARM OF YOUNG EMPRESS.

I was so lost in admiration of this wonderful Empress Eugenie that in dancing in the royal quadrille with the Russian consul I forgot to make the usual steps. Everything was symmetrically perfect in her; the slender, graceful figure with the beautifully modeled shoulders, which were enhanced by the white dress she wore, profusely embroidered with pearls and silver. Her exquisite shape attracted me perhaps even more than did the classically beautiful head, with the noble regular features and the auburn hair, upon which sparkled a royal diadem. Her charming smile bewitched me as much as did the few friendly words she addressed to me in her melodious voice.—From Princess Von Racowitz's Autobiography.

APPROPRIATE.

He had just been reading a bound volume of Punch, issued at the time when the ferocious pun used to run rampant through the pages of that periodical mowing down acres of budding humor in its path. Wearily he laid the volume aside.

"I have a new motto for John Bull," he remarked.
"What is it?" asked his friends.
"The pun never sets on the British dominions."

IN THE MARKET.

scendant of the royal branches of Lorraine and Capet, and other sovereigns of Europe, wishes to contract an alliance with a lady capable of her rank and talents of suppo-ing the dignity and titles, which an alliance so honorable would confer on her.

Treating The Wrong Disease

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality they are all only symptoms caused by some weakness or derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better by reason of the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots without the use of alcohol and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nerv-

EVERY WOMAN ought to possess Dr. Pierce's great book, the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a magnificent thousand-page illustrated volume. It teaches mothers how to care for their children and themselves. It is the best doctor to have in the house in case of emergency. HOUSE WHERE BYRON LIVED

Place in Which Poet Passed Most of Tempestuous Married Life for Sale.

The late Lord Glenesk's house in Piccadilly, which is up for sale, has had several notable occupants, but none more notable than Lord Byron. Most of his brief and tempestuous married life was passed there, his daughter, Lady Lovelace, was born there, he was living there when he parted from his wife forever and in the library at the back of the house overlooking the stables—Lord Glenesk also used it as his library—he wrote "The Siege of Corinth." The apartment remains pretty much the same as it was in 1816.

There are several memorials of the poet in the house. His bust stands in a recess in the overmantel of the entrance hall. There is an oil painting of him framed by the overmantel of the library and the secret stairs in the lobby at the back of the morning room are said to have been used by him as a means of gaining access unobserved through the still existing trapdoor to the room above. He used, it is said, the latter room as a bed chamber, though in Lord and Lady Glenesk's time it was a drawing room.—Westminster Gazette.

RUBBER FROM SOYA BEANS.

According to a Frankfort publication a German patent has been secured for the manufacture from the soya bean of a product to take the place of rubber. The process consists in the reduction of the oil of the soya bean to a thick, tough liquid through the addition of nitric acid. After further treatment with alkaloid solutions the mixture is heated to 150 degrees, giving a tough, highly elastic product similar to rubber, which can be vulcanized by the same process as rubber.

Numerous attempts have been made in the past to manufacture artificial rubber and processes which in the laboratory gave excellent results have been found impracticable on account of high cost. Whether this latest method will be successful remains to be proved.

HIGH COLOR BARRED.

In the days of the Puritans the stocks were not unknown as a penalty for looking too healthy. Ruddiness of complexion was a crime when a gaunt visage was regarded as an outward sign of sanctity.

Doctor Echard, writing in the early eighteenth century, remarks: "Then it was they would scarcely let a round faced man go to heaven. If he had but a little blood in his cheeks his condition was accounted dangerous, and I will assure you a very honest man of sanguine complexion, if he chanced to come nigh an official zealot's house, might be set in the stocks only for looking fresh on a frosty morning."

OUR WIVES.

Simeon Ford, the famous raconteur, was speaking on matrimony at a dinner in New York.

"Matrimony should mean politeness," he said, "but does it?" "We all remember the man who was rebuked by a policeman for swearing at a woman."

"Why," the man retorted, angrily and reproachfully, "she's my wife!" "And the policeman, with a confused apology, hurried on."

JUST THE THING.

"Can you give my constituent here a job on your railroad?" asked the state senator.

"But he can't talk English." "Well, give him a job calling trains."

SOCIETY WOMAN OF TODAY

Primordial Instincts Remain Although Nature Has Refined Her Body and Touched Her Soul.

The other day, as I was watching these worldly women file by with their handsome furs of sable, chinchilla, black or blue fox, one of them caught hers up with a gesture that made me start. Her gesture gave me instantly a vision of the far-off ancestress, who at once appeared before me, tall, strong and majestic, with a wild beast's fleece or skin over her splendid nudity. I saw her standing at the threshold of her cave watching for the return of the man. I gazed in a sort of stupor at this descendant. Nature has continued her work of improvement through the long centuries and has arrived at this! Yes, she has refined the body of woman, given all kinds of shades to her soul, but within her are the primordial instincts still—jealousy, envy, ruse and cruel coquetry. Her winter garment is different; the wild beast's skin has become a beautiful fur, but, as formerly, so the irony of the gods has willed it, this is ornamental with tails, claws, little ferocious heads. And in spite of myself, in this elegant creature, taking her tea there and putting the dainties delicately between her painted lips, I could still distinguish the ancestress.—From "On the Bench," by Pierre de Coubertin.

WHEN FASHIONS CLASH.

Mrs. Lasteraze knocked at the door of Mrs. Faddles and hobbled into the hall.

"Is Mrs. Faddles in?" she asked. "I believe so," said the maid and went in to see.

Soon a voice called from the floor above.

"Will you come up, darling?"

Mrs. Lasteraze surveyed herself dubiously in the hall mirror and replied:

"Can't you come down, dearest?"

"Not possibly," called Mrs. Faddles. "I'm trying on my new hat and it's too wide to pass down the stairs."

"Never mind, dear," answered Mrs. Lasteraze, preparing to leave. "I'll call again. My hobble is too narrow for me to think of attempting to climb up."

HORSE'S REWARD OF MERIT

Twenty years of faithful service given the city by a horse so moved the hearts of the city fathers of Minneapolis that they at once voted a reward of merit to the deserving animal.

The horse is Billy, which has been running with the ambulance. Chief Corriston pleaded with the police committee to retire the old horse to a life of ease for the rest of its days, and the committee recommended to the council that this be done. The council listened to the story of the faithful animal and Billy was turned over to the Humane society and will be left to roam at will about the workhouse farm.

Itching, bleeding, protruding or blind piles yield to Doan's Ointment. Chronic cases soon relieved, finally cured. Druggists all sell it.

CURRENT COMMENT

CREAM OF NEWS COMPILED AND COLLECTED FROM ALL SOURCES

Nearly all of the Republican papers that supported Gov. Willson as an exponent of law and order are lining up for Judge O'Rear, who represents pretty much everything that Gov. Willson opposes, and who took the stump against the Governor's policy in suppressing night riderism.

"Murder is Murder."

An article entitled "Murder is Murder" will appear in the Outlook this week over the signature of Theodore Roosevelt, in which the ex-President takes to task the labor leaders who are rushing pell-mell to the rescue of the alleged dynamiters of the Los Angeles Times. Mr. Roosevelt insists that the accused have a fair and impartial trial and condemns those of the leaders of union labor who are attempting to create a public sympathy in favor of the prisoners before even a preliminary trial has been held. He says in part:

"The stern repression of murderous violence—above all, of murderous violence under circumstances of such cowardly infamy as always accompany the use of dynamite—must, of necessity, be a prime need of any civilization calling itself such. Whether the man attacked is a capitalist or a socialist, a wage earner or a professional man, has nothing to do with the question, and whether the man attacking him does or does not belong to any organization, whether of labor or capital, whether social or religious, has nothing to do with the question."

Like Mr. Roosevelt, right-thinking people in general care little whether a murderer belongs or does not belong to any organization. The fact that twenty-one men were blown to death in the Los Angeles Times building is a matter of history. It would have been the part of criminal carelessness on the part of the authorities if they had accepted the theory of certain individuals that the explosion was the result of an accident. If that investigation resulted in the finding of dynamite stored in the vault of the union headquarters at Indianapolis as reported, and the arrest of the secretary of the union for alleged complicity in the crime, it should be the purpose of the labor leaders, if they really disapprove of such methods, to aid in bringing to justice the man or men guilty of so atrocious a crime, whether he be the secretary of a labor organization or the secretary of a religious organization. No good citizen desires to see an innocent man punished and no good citizen wants to see a guilty man escape. It has been reported in the papers that large sums of money are being raised by the various labor organizations to defend the alleged dynamiters. Defense from what? If the accused are innocent it will soon be apparent. In these days of long and much delayed trials there is little chance of an innocent man being convicted, especially where the case is in and will remain in the spotlight until the final verdict of the jury and possibly the final opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States has been handed down. Yet certain alleged labor leaders seem to think it is less majestic to even arrest one of their number no matter how strong the circumstances that may point in his direction.—Frankfort News Journal.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Holland's Opera House Tuesday Night.

The Baker Stock Company opened a week's engagement at Holland's Opera House last evening, the play selected for the opener was a three act farce, entitled "All Wrong." "All Wrong" is "all right," as it kept the large audience in an uproar from start to finish. Specialties that were introduced between the acts were exceedingly clever. If the Baker Stock Company fulfills the promise of its opening bill, the house should be packed during the entire engagement. For tonight another roaring three act farce, "Confusion." This bill is said to be better than "All Wrong." If this is true, and we have no reason to doubt it, Holland's Opera House will not be able to hold the people the balance of the week.

Baby Princess Bryant Kramer, the smallest and youngest leading lady in the world, will be introduced Tuesday evening, in "Confusion."

ROUP

LIMBERNECK

Composed of certain minerals, salts and acids, combined in such proportions as to give it unequalled curative and

"PROPHYLACTIC" qualities. Entering the fowl's system it is immediately taken up by the blood and carried to every part of the body, completely destroying all germs and supplying nourishing and health-producing elements, which fortify the system against disease. It has "GERMICIDAL" properties which make it absolute and quick death to the germs of "Cholera," "Roup," "Limberneck," "Canker," "Blood Poison," and all existing forms of poultry diseases. It adds "TONIC" and medicinal qualities to the drinking water or feed—cleanses the system—purifies the blood—stimulates the appetite— aids digestion— regulates the bowels and keeps the fowls in a vigorous and perfectly healthy condition. For the treatment of "Blackhead" and other diseases in turkeys, Bourbon Poultry Cure is without an equal.

FAST HORSES ARE SCARCE

Kentucky is Practically Denuded of Horses and Farmers Refuse to Sell.

Frank Taylor, the financier and breeder of fast horses, has returned from a trip through Kentucky, where he went about a month ago to gather recruits for the stable of H. E. Hallenbeck.

"If any man has a notion that good race horses are easy to get this winter he should go to the blue grass region and attempt to make a few desirable purchases," Mr. Taylor says.

"Kentucky practically is denuded of horses. Only a few stables are wintering at Louisville and Lexington and none at Latonia. The few at those tracks were not for sale. Nor could I find purchasable horses at the various farms I visited, although I was willing to pay good prices, and said so. The Kentuckians evidently believe that the game is coming back and intend to hold out for better prices."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WOMEN'S LOT IN PHILIPPINES

Only When They Become Old Does Their Rest Time Really Come.

Life accustoms the Filipino woman to labor at a very early age. As a tiny girl she is rarely seen without an appendage, in the shape of a baby brother or sister perched on her hip. When she grows a few inches taller and a few degrees stronger she is pressed into service as a water carrier, bearing heavy jars on her head from the river to her home. Now, too, she works in the fields, and a vivid bit of color she makes in her short-kilted scarlet skirt. When she becomes a woman—and she is a woman at fifteen or before—she may have a small shop to tend, and there is the rice to beat and much other work to do. Marriage brings no vacation. She tends the fields, cooks and frequently has a stall in the market for several hours a day. But when the women are really old then their rest-time comes. They sit quietly by, looking on as life goes past them, but taking part no more.

SARDINES AS PICKEREL BAIT.

Ralph Boothe of Groveland claims the record for pickerel fishing at Conesus lake this winter, landing nine big fellows in two hours time. The most remarkable feature of the catch was the bait Boothe used. He had nothing suitable to put on his hook when he reached the lake, so he bought a can of sardines at Sutton's hotel and tried the oily fish. The pickerel seemed to relish the sardines thoroughly and Boothe was the gainer as a result.

Big catches of perch are brought to Genesee and disposed of at the meat markets here daily and not a few individuals from here are going over to the lake every few days and replenishing their own private larders. The perch fishing is the best enjoyed so far this season.—Conesus Lake correspondence Rochester Union and Advertiser.

IN THE WILD EAST.

Silas Bush, L. Hazzard and Levi Schnopp, while fox hunting in Juniata township, Huntingdon county, saw the tracks of a wildcat, which they followed to a rocky section of the mountain, where a fierce battle took place between the pursued beast and five dogs, in which the cat came out victor and retired to a cave.

The hunters got five sticks of dynamite, blew the rocks away and killed the savage creature. The cat measured three feet six inches in length and weighed 35 pounds—the largest killed in this part of the state in years.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

THICK AND THIN.

The plot thickened. The heroine on the other hand, though many years elapsed, remained thin throughout the entire five acts of the play.

"Ha, ha!" she laughed buoyantly, in the face of fate, for when, on appearing in her sixteenth gown, she perceived that women in the audience were about to expire of envy, she felt that her future, was, on the whole, safe.—Puck.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Fanatics starve to death while bigots die of gout. Otherwise they are much alike.—Life.

IS OLDEST OF MUMMIES

British Museum Has Remains of King Who Ruled in Egypt 4,000 Years Before Christ.

The British museum has hundreds of Egyptian mummies of all dynasties carefully stowed away within its walls. Some of these are comparatively recent efforts at embalming, while others date back thousands of years.

The oldest of the entire collection is the mummy of Mykerinos. He was a king in Egypt in what is known to history as the "fourth dynasty," and wore his golden tiara and sat on the Egyptian throne 4,000 years before the birth of Christ.

Mykerinos was the builder of the third pyramid at Ghizeh, where his headless mummy was discovered in the year 1836. The stone coffin in which he was being transported to England was lost at sea, and lay at the bottom of the ocean for two years before being recovered.

It is seldom that a man's bones are subjected to vicissitudes, especially five or six thousand years after his death.

DICE THROWING FOR CHECK

Curious Ceremony Takes Place in the Town Hall at Guildford, England.

A curious ceremony took place at Guildford town hall, England, the other day. In 1674 a sum of money, known as "maid's money," was left by Mr. John Hew. Only those who had served as maidservants in the same household for two years are eligible to compete. The competitors have to throw dice, the highest thrower winning the prize. Edith Palmer, who has been in the employ of Mrs. Jarson of Guildford for over seven years, was the prize winner this year. In the same service and for a similar number of years, her sister, an unsuccessful thrower last year, secured this year's apprentices' prize of £21 1s 10d. This latter prize is known as John Parsons' charity (1702). Apprentices competing for this prize must have served their time, be freemen, and worth not more than £20. This year there were no apprentices to compete and the prize was awarded to last year's unsuccessful maid-servant, Miss Dora Anne Palmer.

SHE COULD SPELL.

She is a bright little girl and an adept at imitating grownups. Recently she saw her mother writing a letter to her father, who was in a hospital, and decided that she would write a letter, too. She scribbled away, as little children do, and finally presented a scrawl, neatly folded, as if ready for mailing.

"What did you say in your letter?" asked the mother.

"Oh, all about papa being sick and taking quinine," she answered.

"Taking quinine! Why, your father has a broken ankle. But, tell me, how did you spell quinine?"

"Oh, I spelled it all right."

"But how, dear?"

"Oh, you know how to spell quinine—twenty-seven—twenty-eight—twenty-nine—quinine!"

FOR AMATEUR GARDENERS.

Manure water is necessary for growth and development of plants. The usual mode is to put manure in a sack and soak the same till the manure is saturated. A better plan I have discovered is to put manure in a box whose bottom is perforated with holes. Place box over a tub. Pour water through the box and, without soiling hands or clothes, the manure water can be obtained any strength desired. In experimenting farther I found, by elevating the tub and box (I used a stepladder for support) and attaching hose to the bottom of tub, I could carry liquid manure to any part of the greenhouse and keep myself spotless and scentless. Flower lovers, try this and vote me your thanks.—Harper's Bazar.

THE FRUIT OF LOVE.

"I heard Jim telling Kitty she was the apple of his eye."

"I suppose that is why he loves her, as I heard him say to his heart's core."

JUST THAT.

"Did you have fine times on your auto trip?"

"I should say we had! Nothing but fun!"

ASYLUMS CROWDED.

Next Legislature Must Provide For Additions.

Frankfort, Ky., May 6.—The records of the Board of Control of Kentucky's charitable institutions show that the average number of patients confined in the three asylum for the insane during the month of March this year was 3,705. Of this number 1,453 are confined in the Lakeland asylum, near Louisville, 1,060 in the Eastern asylum at Lexington and 1,162 in the Western asylum at Hopkinsville.

All the asylums are crowded and it is difficult to find room for a new patient till one of the old ones is discharged as cured. It is expected that the next Legislature will be asked to provide for additional buildings at two of the asylums, and the Board of Control will likely recommend that a separate institution established for epileptics. Very few of the epileptics are crazy and should not be confined with the insane people, so the experts say.

PROSPECT'S GOOD

For a Great Revival at Hebron Church.

The protracted meeting at Hebron church, near Church Hill, is increasing in interest with each service. Rev. A. L. Mell is assisting Rev. G. W. Lyon, the pastor. Services are held daily at 10 o'clock a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The prospects are good for a great revival before the close of the series.

WORLD'S ALLIANCE

Of Baptists Will Have Representative Here To-morrow Night.

Rev. A. J. Vining, English representative of the Baptist World's Alliance, will speak at the First Baptist church Wednesday night. He has a message of very great importance and it will be most enlightening to all who hear him. The Baptist Alliance is composed of the Baptist preachers from all over the world. It will meet in Philadelphia in June—meeting in America for the first time. A rare treat is in store for all who may be fortunate enough to hear Dr. Vining.

LUNG TROUBLE

Couses Death of Prominent Ovil Farmer.

J. C. Williams, an aged and well known farmer, died Friday at Ovil, of pleurisy. He is survived by his wife and three children. Mr. Williams was a member of the Baptist church and a much esteemed citizen. His funeral services were held Sunday at his residence by Rev. B. F. Hyde and the interment took place at Ebenezer.

TRIBUTE FROM BERNHARDT

Her Greek Toast to Rostand Was Imitated by One of Dramatist's Sons.

Apropos of Madame Bernhardt, the latest anecdote concerning her and Edmond Rostand, is as follows:

On the day of the admission of Edmond Rostand to the French academy the brilliant author, according to the anecdote in question, gave a breakfast to a few friends, the guest of honor being Mme. Bernhardt.

She wore a very handsome gown, which she declared was made expressly for the occasion, and was never to be worn again.

At the end of the breakfast she arose and with an impressive manner held up a glass, saying:

"I drink to the greatest of French dramatists, Edmond Rostand, and I drink after the Greek manner." Then she poured the contents of the glass over head and gown.

Rostand's two small sons were sitting at a side table wearing new velvet suits, also made for the occasion. In the silence which followed Mme. Bernhardt's dramatic tribute the elder lad arose and imitating her manner said:

"I drink to the greatest of poets, my papa, and I also drink in the Greek fashion." And straightway he deluged himself and his small brother with the contents of his glass.

On being reprimanded, the lad declared that he could not see why he should be punished for doing a thing which everybody applauded when Mme. Bernhardt did it.

SOME HUMORS OF JOURNALISM

Country Editor on Onions and Romance—Miss Daisy Devoe's New Wedding March.

A country editor unburdens himself thus: "It beats the imagination how a girl can eat onions and then go off and write romantic letters."

A correspondent reports that at a recent "function" in his town "Miss Daisy Devoe presided at the piano and beautifully played Mendel & Son's wedding march."

"I wish to enter and take an active part in the battle of life. What would you advise me to do?" "Get married," wrote the editor of the "Replies to Queries" column.

A Harvard avenue lady informed her servant: "If you want eggs to keep you must lay them in a good place." "All right, mum," said the obedient servant, "O'll minton it to the hins at once."

A Constantine (Mich.) man advertised a cow and a calf for sale, and to the prospective purchaser, who doubted that the calf belonged to the cow, he said: "I hope it does, because I bought that calf and gave it to her myself."

PHONE IS GOOD ENOUGH.

As a matter of fact it is now too late to find a good substitute for "telephone message," the sufficient reason being that a bad one has already come into general usage and by so doing been changed to a good one, or at least to one as good as a thousand other words which nobody thinks of criticising. Now, as long since, we "phone" when we talk over the wire "phones," and often, if not usually, we speak of the message as a "phone," even though we wouldn't yet write of it as one. And the single word seems to serve the three purposes well enough.—New York Times.

SEEING ONLY WAS BELIEVING.

A trio of professional story tellers were off in a cozy corner of the club, spinning yarns. Brown had just told a most unbelievable story, and the other two glanced at each other questioningly.

"Well, I assure you, gentlemen," said Brown, "if I hadn't seen it myself I shouldn't have believed it."

"Ha—h'm—well," said one of the doubtful ones, "you must remember, old man, that we didn't see it."—Lippincott's Magazine.

"Can Kid Biff, the prize fighter, come back?"

"Not for a few years, anyway."

"He's in the penitentiary."

"Do you think the harem skirt is really coming?"

"To look at it one can't tell if it is coming or going."

GRATEFUL SILENCE OF SNOW

It is a Great Relief From the Clatter of the Paved Streets in a City.

"I like the snow silence," said Mr. Goslington, "the stillness that falls on the city when snow comes."

"As the pavement begins to be covered with snow the sound of the horses' iron-shod feet is deadened and gradually a change comes over the world, and then as you see horses go by, moving with a strange stillness, you realize it is the silence of the snow."

"And then you have days of this days of silence, and then comes a day when from some spot where the snow has worn away you hear again the sharp ring of an iron-bound hoof, and by another day the sound of the town has come back, and then once more you hear the familiar clatter, clatter, clatter of hoofs in the busy street."

"In the other state things seem distant, far, strange. In this they seem near, friendly; they have come back, and the returning ring of the hoof on the pavement is a sound I like to hear; but still I do fancy, as we have them now and then, those periods of the silence of the snow."—New York Sun.

APRIL FOOLERS.

Arthur L. Raymond, the famous pitcher, was talking about "curves" at a baseball banquet in New York.

"There are all sorts of correspondence courses," he said, "that teach you how to learn to pitch, but they are apt to be April foolers."

"A lad once asked me how long it would take to make a pitcher out of him. I told him it would take three years, working eight hours a day. But that was too hard. He saw in a sporting paper an advertisement that said:

"Send $3 and learn to be an expert pitcher in 24 hours."

"So he sent on the money and got this reply:

"The method is extremely simple. Just divide pitching in 24 parts and learn one every hour."

A DEFECT.

A certain skeptic was contending before a minister that the work of the Creator was manifestly imperfect. "Have you not yourself," he asked, "noted defects in the human organism, for instance, and thought of better contrivances?" To his delight there was the frank reply:

"Why, yes, I really think I have."

"In what respect?" "Why," drawled the parson, "you see, when I want to shut out anything disagreeable from my sight I can draw down my eyelids and it's all done; but, unfortunately, I haven't any flaps to my ears." Free conversation ceased at about that point.—The Christian Guardian.

Again We Say

While They Talked

"He was the smartest dog you ever saw," said the host from the head of the table, enthusiastically. "There he'd sit just as contemptuous as a human being if you threw down eight rings, or nine—but the minute all ten of those rubber rings were down he'd bark and gather them up one by one and bring them back to you! Why, he could count, that dog could, just as well as you! There wasn't any fooling him, either! Why, one time—"

"My French poodle was just as bright," interrupted the woman on his right. "Really, Toto was abnormal! He wasn't just a bundle of fluff with no brains, as most people judged from his looks. He knew every single word you said to him and he knew how to get his own way. Why, I've known that dog when there was a roomful of company and nobody was paying any particular attention to him to select a prominent place and sit up on his hind legs, looking about proudly when people exclaimed over how clever he was."

"But that wasn't what I started to tell you. Toto was frightfully stubborn and always wanted his own way. Once he sat down in front of the swing door into the kitchen and barked to be let out there, but for some reason I didn't want him to go, so I said: 'No.' He kept right on whining and teasing and drooped his ears and his tail and looked the picture of deserted despair, but I didn't give in and finally he sat down and put his head on one side and thought. Then, like a flash he got up, raced up the front stairs, through the second floor and down the back stairs into the kitchen, where he wanted to go. You needn't tell me that dog didn't figure that all out."

"He certainly was bright," said the host, politely. "Now, my dog—"

"My terrier was terribly jealous," interrupted the man with the mustache. "Jealousy in an animal is very pathetic, I think. Bob had always been the whole thing and when the baby came he simply couldn't understand it. He'd try to push her out of our laps and sit and weep and look agonized when we talked to her. Finally, I telephoned a friend that I had to dispose of either the baby or the terrier, and he could come over and take his choice. He was dreadfully afraid of hurting her feelings and explained that of course the baby was lots nicer, but that he chose the terrier, as he could lock it up and leave it at home when he wanted to go out anywhere and he couldn't the baby."

"Ha! Ha!" said the host. "Most amusing! Now, my dog—"

"Poor little Fido" broke in the woman at his left. "It's all I can do to keep from crying when I think of him! I think dogs must have souls, don't you? He was a cocker spaniel and so affectionate. He loved me devotedly and couldn't bear to have me out of his sight, and it always made him furious if we went riding and didn't take him along. Whenever I left him behind he went straight upstairs to a low shoe closet where I kept my shoes, and if the door wasn't locked he'd nose it open. Then he'd carry every one of those shoes and slippers downstairs and put them on the window seat and sit guard over them till he saw me come home. I tell you, nobody could touch those shoes—he'd growl and show his teeth and raise a dreadful row! I thought it so cunning!"

"Very pretty, indeed," said the host. "It reminds me that my dog—"

"Henry!" interrupted his wife from the foot of the table, "don't you remember Sport? Sport was the bulldog my brother owned and when Henry was coming to see me Sport took the greatest fancy to him. One night when he was calling and another man came Sport sat on the front steps and wouldn't let the other man come up to ring the bell! Wasn't that perfectly killing? The other man declared that Henry had subsidized Sport with soupbones, but he really was quite nice about it, because he sent us a lovely silver dish when we were married."

"Good old dog, Sport," agreed the host. "As I was saying—"

"Fido really must have been part human," said the woman on his left. "He would sulk and pout, you know. Once, when we had been riding and he had stayed at home, he evidently thought it over and got terribly mad, for he acted just like a child who was in a rage and wanted to show how bad he could be. He jumped into my lap and pawed my hair down just as viciously as though he were saying: 'I'll show you.' I laughed till I almost cried."

"Dogs certainly are intelligent," said the host in a strained but determined voice. "Now, the dog I am telling you about—"

He was interrupted by his wife and the rest of the women rising and departing for the library. "We'll have our coffee there," his wife remarked.

The deserted man edged closer together and the host cleared his throat. "Now," he said firmly, "I shall tell you about that dog I—"

"Say," spoke up the only man who had contributed nothing to the symposium, "I don't care about dogs. Let's talk about horses. I've got a horse that's a wonder!"

"Well, of course, it's in my own house, so I can't do anything violent," said the host. "So babble on, confound you!"

Might Not Be Alive.

McMinnville, Tenn.—Mrs. Odie Jett, of this place, writes: "I do not believe I would be living today, if it hadn't been for Cardui. MICE EAT LEGISLATORS' STAMPS.

After all the wrangling that the members of the house experienced early in the session in getting through a resolution relative to supplies for the members, including stamps, it seems that all their trouble is not over yet.

It is not a question now of getting the stamps, but of keeping them after they do get them. The house is infested with mice, and they show a decided preference toward Uncle Sam's stamps. They have mutilated, eaten and carried away nearly the entire supply of stamps furnished several of the members.—Dover correspondence Wilmington Every Evening.

Temptation

Brewer shrugged his shoulders a little angrily, for the idle remark irritated him.

"It's so," persisted the speaker. "You've the best chance on earth to be dishonest if you wanted to and never be suspected. Lucky for the banks—and lucky for you—that you're honest!"

The words repeated themselves in his mind as Brewer walked along. Crayfoot was right. Brewer, an expert man on safes, time and time again held the secrets of bank vaults in his mind, with no man to stop him should he choose to dispose of the night watchman and, opening those vaults, relock them after helping himself. It was indeed lucky that he was honest.

With the speculative smile still curving his lips he turned in at the Guthrie's house, springing up the steps with the eagerness which was always his when Gertrude Guthrie was near.

As she came toward him, smiling, Brewer thought again, as he had thought innumerable times before, how all things beautiful should be hers by right—beauty of surroundings, of garb, of jewels. That she should be wasted in obscurity seemed a crime—and the Guthrie family was in only moderate circumstances, with all the longing of those poor for generations for the power of wealth.

That evening he discovered that excitement swayed Gertrude's parents. Evans, the millionaire, had of late shown marked preference for Gertrude's society. So in her mother's heart a wild hope had sprung to life. Brewer, who always had been cordially welcomed before, felt a chill in the air.

"You forget," Gertrude's mother told her when she had promised Brewer that she would go with him to the theater the following evening, "you forget that Mr. Evans said he might call."

Brewer, watching the color come and go on the girl's face with a queer, choking sensation in his throat, knew that to Gertrude also Evans was a glittering prospect.

Walking slowly homeward, thinking it over, he could not blame her. With the possibility of losing her, desperation began to tinge his thoughts. He was still going over the same weary round mentally the following day as he worked on the time lock of the Eastern bank. Into his musings, clear and sharp like a stroke, flashed Crayfoot's idle suggestion as to his chances to enrich himself.

His hands trembled as he worked on. Once or twice he glanced, half frightened, into the interior of the vault, where he had no right to go. Strange thoughts disturbed his brain and his lips tightened into a line as he planned—for it could do no harm to plan. It really was very simple. The only drawback was that eventually suspicion would narrow down to him. By then, however, he could have his plunder safely concealed. They could prove nothing and Gertrude would believe in him.

This thought brought the first chill, for how could he face her, she believing in him? He remembered her trustful eyes and breathed hard. Then he remembered Evans and again took up his planning with tightening lips.

There was a queer medley in his brain several nights later when he again sought Gertrude. He had a mad fancy that he could better crystallize his plans if he were in her presence and could hear her voice. Since temptation had beset him he had existed in a daze, thinking, planning, always planning.

His eyes were feverish as he bent toward the girl when conversation lagged. "Gertrude," he asked, huskily, "would you give up Evans—would you marry me if I had money—and could give you things?"

Startled, she looked at him and then she smiled, the half sad, tender smile women give those for whom they care in spite of all.

"But you'll never have money, Louis," she told him. "You are not one of the kind of men who get rich."

Brewer saw only the smile. "I shall be, I tell you!" he said. "And then—you'll marry me?"

She drew back and her face whitened as her eyes searched his haggard face.

"No," she almost whispered, "no, because if you came to me with a fortune in your hands, Louis, I'd know that you hadn't got it honestly."

As Brewer gazed into her eyes he felt helplessly that they saw far down into the secret recesses of his soul, were reading the blackness of the thoughts there. He felt that she was shrinking from him in a dawning horror. His face dropped into his hands.

It was as from a distance that he heard her breathe his name. "Louis," she said, haltingly. "I don't understand. Why should you so misjudge me? Why should a question of wealth enter into the subject of my—marrying you? If I cared, you know? Do you think so poorly of me as that?"

The man, raising his head, saw her breathless, flushed with the effort of her words, with that little smile of tenderness and self giving. A loathing of himself, of the sin that was seared on his soul, overwhelmed him, swept him out into the full current of life again.

"Oh," he breathed, as he bent over her hands. "Give me time! Give me a chance to show what I can be, Gertrude, with your help!"

COOKS FIVE DISHES AT ONCE

Novel Utensil Invented by Ohio Woman Has Many Things to Recommend It.

A cooking utensil that has many things to recommend it has been invented by an Ohio woman. Its chief merit is that it will cook five things at once over one burner of a gas stove, thereby saving space, trouble and fuel. A circular platter has five pans arranged around a handle in the center and the lids have attachments, so that they can either be opened on a hinge and dropped back again or can be held open indefinitely. Usually only one thing can be cooked over one burner at a time, and usually, too, cooking pots and pans are unnecessarily large for small families. All the food that a small family of two or three persons requires can be contained in the pans shown here, and if the dishes require different lengths of time on the range, they can be put on or taken off separately. As will readily be seen, this utensil will be especially convenient in flats.

HINTS ON HOW TO USE HAM

Dainty Ways of Serving Meat That Will Appeal to Jaded Appetites.

Sliced ham is more tender if it is baked than if fried. Cut a slice three-quarters of an inch thick, put it into a small enamel can, turn three-quarters of a cupful of milk over it, cover and bake for an hour and a quarter, basting every 15 minutes with milk.

For luncheon grind the ends of a boiled ham and mix it with a button onion that has been chopped fine and a little minced parsley. Put the mixture into a pan with a little butter and moisten with hot water or cream. Simmer four or five minutes and then heap on slices of toast.

For curly bacon cut it very thin and half cook it in boiling water, then curl it, fasten in shape with a toothpick and broil it over the fire. A little grated American cheese mixed with minced ham used in sandwiches is delicious if the sandwich is fried brown and served very hot.

Cold ham is tasty if it is shredded and cooked in currant jelly sauce. Put a cupful of the shredded ham into a saucepan with a level tablespoonful of butter and half a cupful of currant jelly. As soon as the jelly and butter begin to bubble add four tablespoonfuls of sherry and a seasoning of paprika. Simmer the mixture about five or six minutes and serve with toast.

Onion and Potato Stuffing.

Pare and cut small about 2 quarts of onions. Boil, and when nearly done pare about 6 or 7 medium potatoes, put in with onions and boil till mealy. Remove and mash potatoes and put onions through a grinder. Then grind about 1/4 pound all fat pork and let it melt in with onions and potatoes. Next take 3 or 4 common crackers and grind and mix all together. Season with salt and poultry dressing or sage to taste. It will be moist. Stuff bird and bake. One-half hour before it is baked put the rest of stuffing into same pan and bake in the rich gravy. Everyone who has ever eaten it once never refuses it the second time.

Salmon Puffs.

Chop the meat from one can of salmon; add one tablespoon of melted butter, salt and pepper, one-half cupful bread crumbs, one tablespoon lemon juice and three well-beaten eggs. Mix well and pack into cups, about three-fourths full. Set the cups into a pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven one-half hour. Turn them out on a platter and place a sprig of parsley on top of each.

The Pie of Five.

One large, juicy lemon, one cupful of sugar, one egg, one good sized potato, one cupful of water. Grate rind of lemon and add juice and egg. Beat well. Grate potato; if possible, through a food chopper. Stir well with other ingredients and then add water. Put in double boiler or saucepan and let thicken and bake in two crusts.

To Preserve Eggs.

To one pint of unslaked lime and one pint of salt, pour one pail of boiling water. When cold pour over the eggs, having placed them in a large jar or tub, with the small end of the egg down.

Maple Syrup Cake.

Cream one-half pound of butter with two cupfuls of sugar, add four well beaten eggs, two cupfuls of maple syrup, one cupful of milk, a pinch of salt, stir until smooth and bake in two crusts.

She Stayed in Bed.

Ingram, Texas.—"Ever since I became a woman," writes Mrs. E. M. Evans, of this place, "I suffered from womanly troubles. Last fall, I got so bad, I had to stay in bed for nearly a week every month. Since I have taken Cardui, I feel better than I have for years." You can rely on Cardui. It acts on the womanly organs and helps the system to regain its normal state of health, in a natural way. Prepared especially for women, it prevents womanly pains by acting on a cause, and builds up womanly strength in a natural way. Purely vegetable. Mild, but certain in action. Try it.

KITTY MEWS

The Fulton K. I. T. team was trounced by the Training school team at Union City, Tenn., in a game on May 5, by the score of 1 to 0. Fulton made only 3 hits and 9 men struck out.

The Moguls returned yesterday from Morganfield after playing the team of that city three games, all of which were won by Hopkinsville, by the following scores: First game, 2 to 0; second game, 5 to 2; third game, 4 to 2.

Manager Gene Curtiss reached Clarksville Friday and his team reported yesterday for practice. The Leaf Chronicle says: "Mr. Curtiss has had considerable baseball experience, and the job of manager is not new to him. Last season he played with Erie, Pa., in the Ohio-Pennsylvania League, and had a batting record of .313, being second in the batting average of the league. In 1903, the year they played Boston for the world's championship, Mr. Curtiss was utility outfielder of the Pittsburgh National League team. The following season he played with Colorado Springs, of the Western League, and since he has played in the Tri-State, Central and O. P.

Leagues. Mr. Curtiss has a great record as a batter, having hit over 300 each season during his career in league baseball."

OLD BOARDS WIN

In Both the White and Colored School Elections.

Both the white and colored graded schools held elections Saturday to elect two trustees for terms of three years. The voting was very light in the white school election, the old ticket having no opposition. There were only a few scattering votes against the present trustees. The result stood:

J. E. McPherson.....	208
J. T. Wall.....	199
Bailey Russell.....	11
Irving Roseborough.....	1
Stonewall Morris.....	1

Mr. McPherson's election is for the eighth consecutive term of three years. Mr. Wall has served on the Board for three terms, 9 years.

The Colored Election.

The colored election was held in the circuit court room and brought out a total of more than 400 votes. The present trustees, Peter Postell and Lucian Dade, were re-elected, but George Leavell made a formidable race and polled 181 votes for one of the places. The results were as follows:

Peter Postell.....	366
Lucian Dade.....	256
George Leavell.....	181

Postell's plurality was 185 and Dade's 75 over Leavell.

NEIGHBORHOOD POOL.

Wool to be Cut by Machinery And Sold in a Lump.

Thursday has been set apart by several farmers of the Casky neighborhood as "Sheep shearing day." Messrs. F. M. Quarles, Frank Dulin, and J. H. Dillman will take their sheep to Mr. M. B. King's and their flocks aggregating 100 head, will be sheared by a machine operated by Messrs. Stephen Williams and Holland Garnett. Buyers have been notified to attend the shearing and the wool will be sold on the ground. A sheep will be killed and barbecued and there will be a good dinner for all interested parties. Last year a Wool Pool was formed. This new plan may be adopted by other farmers besides those in the Casky neighborhood, if the experiment is successful.

PUPILS WED

And Keep Their Secret for Many Months.

Greenville, Ky., May 8.—The surprise of the season in Greenville occurred here when the marriage of Mr. Oscar W. Irvin of this city, to Miss Anna I. Hays, of Rochester, became known. Mr. and Mrs. Irvin were married August 10, 1910, at the home of Senator and Mrs. N. W. Utley, at Eddyville, but the fact was concealed until Friday when Mr. Irvin returned from Lexington, where he is a student at the State university.

His bride is a daughter of J. F. Hays, of Rochester. She is a social favorite here, and also at Lexington, where she was also a student.

Something New.

There will be a plowing exhibition on the farm of F. M. Pyle, one mile south of Hopkinsville, Ky., Palmyra road, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 16th and 17th, 1911. The plowing will be done with a Rumely Kercene Oil Pull Tractor, and Rumely engine gang plows. The Rumely Oil Pull tractor is one of the most complete and best known devices for furnishing power for plowing and threshing. We want all interested parties to see this demonstration, and will assure all who come that there will be something interesting to see.

OLDEST CLOWN

In the Business With Dog and Pony Show.

Albert Gaston, the principal clown with the Deuel Shows, which exhibit here again today and tonight, has the unique distinction of being the oldest living clown in the world actively engaged in the show business. Gaston first started his career as a showman in the year 1857 being apprenticed that year to the Chas. Shay's Quinquplexed Shows, and last summer he celebrated his birthday by doing a somersault over a herd of elephants amid the applause of his fellow performers. Gaston is a lovable old man, he resembles P. T. Barnum so much that one of his pictures would do for that great showman. He is one of the surviving "talking and singing clowns." When every circus had one ring and every person could hear and see what was done, the clown had to be a good entertainer. When you see Gaston in the ring you see the same sort of clown your forefathers laughed at. With his quaint philosophy, a bit of satire and some Shakespeare he keeps an audience in a roar of laughter and when he sings one of the old clown songs you laugh, just as millions laughed at them 50 years ago. 45 years ago Dan Rice set all the country laughing with his clowning. Gaston was with him then and he is doing the same clowning now. These facts are merely mentioned at this time because the proprietors of the Deuel Shows want the people to see and hear the most interesting of clowns and for this reason, this is printed concerning this remarkable fellow.

CUMB. TELEPHONE

Wins Injunction Suit Over City of Paducah.

Paducah, May 6.—When the city of Paducah failed to defend its bout with the East Tennessee Telephone company, it let its guard drop and is now enjoined not "in any manner to interfere with the business or property of the company," according to the latest decree handed down by Judge Walter Evans, of the United States court at Louisville.

Following upon the heels of a temporary restraining order, granted Judge Evans, January 10, enjoining the city from enforcing a rate ordinance enacted by the general council December 10, 1910, came a permanent injunction this morning, was received from Judge Evans. Federal Court Clerk Walter A. Burn and besides being bound and foot in saying what rates the telephone company pays, must pay for the company's action while it sits up and merely watched the proceedings.

Judge Evans says the rates fixed by the ordinance are confiscatory, and as the city of Paducah made no fight there is nothing left to grant the prayer of the phone company.

The ordinance adopted by the council fixed the maximum to be charged business 'phone $2.50 per month and the maximum rate for residence phones at $1.
